McCombs Residential Center

All photos by Gaby Frey

The great legacy of construction at Southwestern continues. This year the Charline Hamblin McCombs Residential Center was completed. Workers continued to put the finishing touches on the apartments as the school year began and students were becoming settled. The buildings were dedicated at a ceremony on April 25, 2001 with Mr. and Mrs. Red McCombs present, and yellow roses were planted in honor of Mrs. McCombs.

King Creativity Fund

Alumnus Joey King, 29, founder of the King Creativity Fund helps to promote original and inventive research in all fields of study at Southwestern.

Meagan Lyons, Casey Douglas, Joi Lakes, and Stephanie Arsenault banded together and recieved a grant which they used to start the student run tv station: ARGH.

Senior Karen Harton was one of the recipients for the grant this year. She used the funds to create "Nine Paitings: Nature 'Re-Presented'" which was displayed in the art gallery in the FAB.

In 2000, Southwestern University alumnus Joey King, age 29, donated $500,000 to his alma mater to establish the King Creativity Fund, which annually supports "innovative and visionary projects" of enrolled students.

The fund supports up to 20 projects in any given academic year with each grant award ranging up to $1500 per project.

Creative projects can be carried out on Southwestern's campus or at another institution or laboratory. Projects from all disciplines are eligible and multidisciplinary projects are especially encouraged.

Grants are awarded by a six-member committee composed of four students, representing the fine arts, the humanities, the natural sciences, and the social sciences, as well as a faculty advisor and an administrative advisor. With the exception of its inaugural year, student committee members will be drawn from the list of students who have been awarded a King Creativity Grant in previous years.

Committee members base awards on their creative merit, the soundness of the proposal, their feasibility, potential for educational enhancement, qualifications of the student project directors, and budget projections.

King Creativity Grant recipients will present the results of their projects at an annual symposium to be held in the spring of each year. King plans to attend each year.

BALL

Where the Kings and Queens Rule

As the year 2000 made its way into the hearts of Southwestern students, the "Kings" and "Queens" gathered for a night of fun in Mood-Bridwell Hall. Party-goers arrived in short dresses, suits, and even tall pink wigs. This party began the festivities known as Coming-Out Week. Although the ball is traditionally held at the end of this week, it was moved to the beginning of the week due to the impending fall break. Inside the walls of Mood-Bridwell, students danced and admired the costumes of the many participants. A costume contest for the best "King" and "Queen" were held. This year Jenna Peter and Robert March were crowned King and Queen, respectively. Fun was had by all.

The KA Suspension When The Storm Broke

Story by
S a r a Springfield.
Printed in Megaphone
on 2-22-01

Yet another controversial issue has been plaguing SU's inboxes. But this time, serious measures have been taken, the campus has become divided and Southwestern made the national news. It all began last week when a car parked out by Sun City emblazoned with the words 'Die Oldies, you Suck, We Hate Old People' was discovered by a Sun City resident. Sun City, who has had a good relationship with Southwestern, was shocked by this blatant disregard for respect.

"I wanted to know what the motive was. I was surprised to find out that someone from Southwestern did this. We have always been impressed with how polite the students are," Sun City neighborhood representative Robert Fears stated.

Sun City 'residents' have expressed emotions from anger and sadness to fear for their well-being, and have likened the event to a hate crime.

"It kind of leaves you with a scary feeling. Georgetown is a safe town. We sometimes leave our doors unlocked. I cannot believe that Southwestern would allow people in the school of that caliber. We're not just sitting in rocking chairs out here. We are very active in the community. We're really not a bunch of grumpy old people!" Sun City resident Barbara Wolfe said.

Sun city residents are obviously not divided on this issue, the Southwestern campus is.

Sophomore Blayne Naylor, whose grand parents live in Sun City, said this: "I definitely think that whoever it was should write a formal apology, and possibly do some community service type of work in Sun City so that he/she/they can see that they are more than just a bunch of old people.

You only have to be 55 to live there, and I'm sure there are students at Southwestern whose parents are over 55. If seniors were recognized in the same way that ethnic minorities and homosexuals are, it would probably be considered a hate crime by the police, and then the individuals who did it would have something more serious to worry about."

Another student, Chad Beaty agrees with Blayne.

"I am not sure if there was a reason for the event or whether it was just a prank. I do not believe what happened was a good thing. The prank was just an act of hate, and all hate crimes should face penalties that are equivalent to the damage caused. I would never support or defend anyone involved in a prank of sheer hatred," he said.

As to what penalties the student, s should face Chad is not sure.

"Students who believe they should prosecute make me uncomfortable. Many students decided that it was their job to judge the people who acted out the prank. The judgments were expressed though campus wide [e-mails], giving people who were unaware of the prank false impressions. I would hope that no one would condone the issue, but I believe gathering hate for these students is an act of hate itself," he explained.

One student, who wishes to remain anonymous, believes that the incident should not be taken too seriously.

"I think that it's important to note that the car belonged to a student, not a Sun City resident, and that it was a practical joke. I don't think the offenders, whoever they are, really meant to wish any harm on the residents of Sun City. Once again, the SU community has blown the whole thing out of proportion," the student said.

Many other students, both angry at the situation and not angry about it, have expressed their opinions through campus-wide e-mails.

It has been determined that this incident was carried out by members of the Xi Chapter of the Kappa Alpha Order.

The next drama, which further increased campus division, occurred on Monday night (Feb. 19th).

In a campus-wide e-mail from President Jake Schrum, it was announced that the Xi Chapter of the Kappa Alpha Order was to be Suspended until Spring 2005.

The decision was made in conjunction with the Kappa Alpha Order National Organization.

In the past several weeks, several members of the organization had been placed on probation, and both former Southwestern President Roy Shilling and President Schrum had previously issued warnings to the Xi Chapter concerning the fraternity's conduct.

According to Schrum, the decision to disband Southwestern's Kappa Alpha Order was based on isolated incidents involving safety violations, alcohol violations, personal conduct violations, physical and verbal abuse, and at least two incidents of racial slurs, which occurred in the last 30 days. At a press conference Tuesday morning, the e-mail was read aloud by Schrum, and a town meeting followed.

When asked how he felt about disbanding the Xi Chapter of which he used to be a member himself, Schrum said, "I am grieved."

He also reminded listeners that "[Southwestern University is] suspending an organization at Southwestern, not its members. Chapter members of Kappa Alpha Order at Southwestern University are members of our community and their continued education and maturation process remain our concern and our goal."

Many outraged and saddened students attended the meeting, as well as students who felt that this decision was the right and proper one.

The meeting had a serious tone to it and although both "sides" were present, all students were polite and cordial to one another.

We have yet to see if the decision will be appealed by Kappa Alpha members.

The Kappa Alpha House will be closed at the end of this week, when active Kappa Alpha members must then move out their belongings.

Off-campus apartments are being provided for those who lived in the house, and several KA members are opting to stay on campus.

The KA members refused to comment on any of the issues.

This is the second suspension of a Kappa Alpha chapter in Texas this year, the first being at the University of North Texas.

However, Larry Wiese, executive director of the Kappa Alpha Order's national organization, said in response to Southwestern's decision that "although these two disciplinary actions in Texas are related in timing, they are not similar in circumstances. However, it is clear we need to examine and implement programs to prevent this from happening in the future."

According to a press release by Stewart Harvey for the KA National Administrative Office located in Lexington, Virginia, undergraduate members of all KA chapters in Texas and Oklahoma voted to ban display of the Confederate flag from any KA property or event.

At Southwestern's press conference, Schrum commented that "Southwestern's Core Values had been here long before I got here. The issue here, I think, is whether any Southwestern student, staff or faculty member are going to walk the walk, or just talk the talk."

When asked if Southwestern feared that the recent incidents would make it harder to attract a more diverse student population, Schrum said he does not think so.

"Hopefully, prospective students may be heartened by this decision," he said.

The Xi Chapter of Southwestern University's Kappa Alpha Order will have its charter revoked in August, 2001.

Vagina Monologues

Excerpt from Eve Ensler's
The Vagina Monologues

"I bet you're worried. I was worried. That's why I began this piece. I was worried about vaginas. I was worried about what we think about vaginas, and even more worried that we don't think about them. I was worried about my own vagina. It needed a context of other vaginas-- a community, a culture of vaginas. There's so much darkness and secrecy surrounding them-- like the Bermuda Triangle. Nobody ever reports back from there.

In the first place, it's not so easy even to find your vagina. Women go weeks, months, sometimes years without looking at it. I interviewed a high-powered businesswoman who told me she was too busy; she didn't have the time. Looking at your vagina, she said, is a full day's work. You have to get down there on your back in front of a mirror that's standing on its own, full-length preferred. You've got to get in the perfect position, with the perfect light, which then is shadowed somehow by the mirror and the angle you're at. You get all twisted up. You're arching your head up, killing your back. You're exhausted by then. She said she didn't have the time for that. She was busy.

So I decided to talk to women about their vaginas, to do vagina interviews, which became vagina monologues. I talked with over two hundred women. I talked to older women, young women, married women, single women, lesbians, college professors, actors, corporate professionals, sex workers, African American women, Hispanic women, Asian American women, Native American women, Caucasian women, Jewish women. At first Senior Dawn Korthals and Sophomores Megan Lea and Melissa Whited get to work decorating their "vagina" at the carnival. The vagina carnival is an event which promotes the voicing of women's issues as well as helping the campus community come together to talk about these issues. There was information and a discussion group to further these aims at the carnival.

women were reluctant to talk. They were a little shy. But once they got going, you couldn't stop them. Women secretly love to talk about their vaginas. They get very excited, mainly because no one's ever asked them before.

Let's just start with the word 'vagina.' It sounds like an infection at best, maybe a medical instrument: 'Hurry, Nurse, bring me the vagina.' 'Vagina.' 'Vagina.' Doesn't matter how many times you say it, it never sounds like a word you want to say. It's a totally ridiculous, completely unsexy word. If you use it during sex, trying to be politically correct-- 'Darling, could you stroke my vagina?'-- you kill the act right there.

I'm worried about vaginas, what we call them and don't call them.

In Great Neck, they call it a pussycat. A woman there told me that her mother used to tell her, 'Don't wear panties underneath your pajamas, dear; you need to air out your pussycat.' In Westchester they called it a pooki, in New Jersey a twat. There's 'powderpox', 'derriere,' a 'poochi,' a 'poopi,' a 'peepe,' a 'poopelu,' a 'poonani,' a 'pal' and a 'piche,' 'toadie,' 'dee dee,' 'nishi,' 'dignity,' 'monkey box,' 'coochi snorcher,' 'cooter,' 'labbe,' 'Gladys Siegelman,' 'VA,' 'wee wee,' 'horsespot,' 'nappy dugout,' 'mongo,' a 'pajama,' 'fannyboo,' 'mushmellow,' a 'ghoulie,' 'possible,' 'tamale,' 'tottita,' 'Connie,' a 'Mimi' in Miami, 'split knish' in Philadelphia, and 'schmende' in the Bronx. I am worried about vaginas."

CONTROVERSY ON CAMPUS

Story by Mary Jane Valetti

Photography by Allen Cote

Controversy ran rampant across Southwestern this year, as two opposing factions clashed over their rights to freedom of speech and religious expression, with no less than the future of democracy at stake. The issues at hand were dealt with every bit as seriously and passionately as the sit-ins and protests of old, with an abundance of name-calling and finger pointing from both sides, and the true mark of a politically aware activist: graffiti.

The origins of the battle hark back to the timeless tale of Jesus Christ; his birth, death, and resurrection; and the ensuing religious fervor surrounding his popular quips (even before he became a Superstar). In recent years, a powerful Christian sect whose members refer to themselves as "Jesus Freaks" has sprung up in the Southwestern community, spreading the message of Christ, and sharing his love through their speech and actions; "They pounced on me like a pack of hungry wolves, and told me to convert or burn in hell," as one student describes her experience with the disciples.

An organization whose ideals often run counter to many traditionally held Christian beliefs, Feminist Voices (affected by tionately referred to by students as the "Penis Enviars"), has also gained attention on campus, and has been very active in promoting their views on the position of women within society; one student, when asked about his encounters with the organization, was quick to respond "Feminist who?" Early spring saw the performance of The Vagina Monologues, a series of skits, dialogue, and monologues by various women, designed to create awareness and allow women to become more comfortable with their body by throwing off the stigma associated with the word "vagina", and its often-negative connotations. One of the more surprising conflicts surrounding the performances was the appearance of the word "vagina" written in chalk on sidewalks around the Southwestern campus, inciting cries of pornography and forcing administration to take a stance on the legality of chalk writing on the sidewalks. While the responsible party remains as yet unknown, it is believed that this act was designed to further the purpose of the Monologues by allowing people to become more comfortable with seeing the word "vagina" on their daily walk to class, and simultaneously creating advertising for the performances.

Mandatory Marijuana Picture

The vagina were simply washed off the sidewalk, and nothing more was said on the issue for several months. Administration eventually cracked under the pressure of Stephen Smajstrla and his gang of blackboard rebels, who had been in hiding on the Academic Mall for three straight nights (except the Wednesday when it rained); and sidewalk chalking was again made legal, ensuring that no one would write on the sidewalks for many weeks. Controversy was again stirred up, however, with the arrival of gifts in all students' mail boxes from a national Christian organization: a video chronicling the life of Jesus Christ, featuring a cover photo wherein Jesus looks remarkably like Nicholas Cage. The non-Christian population of Southwestern (comprised of a Junior named "Timmy" who refers to his organization as "The Power of One") was quick to respond, citing the Supreme Court rulings on religion in public inof the Cullen building; the sheer magnitude of the destruction was indescribable. "I saw it [the toes], and was immediately reminded of the racial slurs in the 'Tunnel of Oppression'," one student painfully remembered; "We have to make ther tension, and the possibility of bloodshed. Georgetown police are expected to react quickly and efficiently to any civil unrest, promising a new plan that entails "the eradication of all Southwestern University students." The Jesus

stitutions; the ensuing e-mail battles were devastating, claiming several lives and many hours of sleep. The argument was made that if the Penis Enviars could write "vagina" on the sidewalk, then the Jesus Freaks could pass out videos; a counter argument was presented that "vagina" is just a body part, and they could just as well have written "toe" everywhere. Jesus Freaks across campus quickly jumped into action - or maybe it was the Penis Enviars... though it could quite possibly have been a rogue chalker seeking to instigate a riot: in actuality, no one is quite sure who was responsible for the graffiti, nor of the motives for their actions. Regardless, within days there were toes everywhere: written in front of the McCombs building, on the sidewalks surrounding the Mall, on the steps and walls people aware that this is happening in our own town." Another student offered her insight into the situation: "It's just like that R.E.M. song 'It's the End of the World', you know?"

The conflict remains unresolved, and the onset of a new semester foreshadows fur-

Freaks and the Penis Enviars are readying themselves for the upcoming battles, preparing fresh rhetoric and clichés, as the campus community fearfully awaits the apocalypse. The future does not look bright for the sidewalks of Southwestern, but the spokesperson for Feminist Voices remains optimistic:

"We've been recently inserting bugs in all new members."

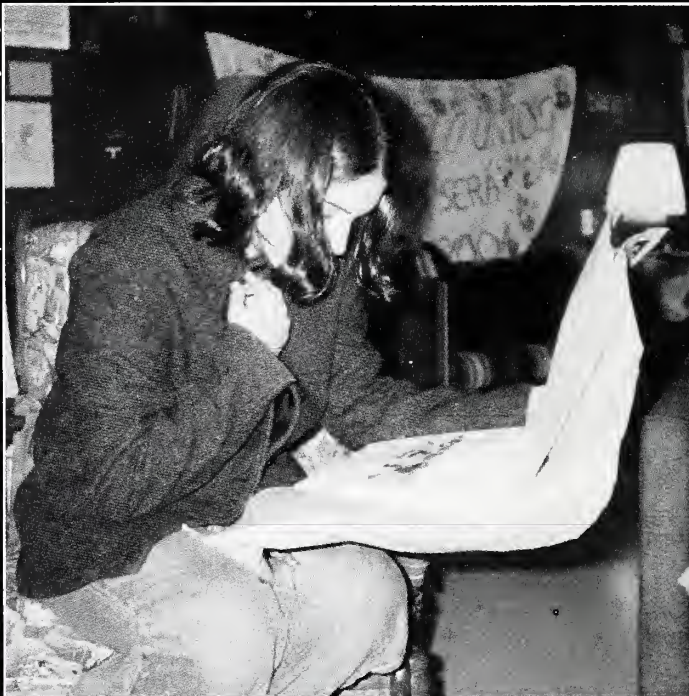

The opinions expressed do not necessarily reflect the views of Sou'wester or its staff; all names, faces, and vaginas have been withheld to protect the innocent. Please direct all comments, criticisms, and clichés to virginal_virus@hotmail.com. Have a nice day.

The Final Word.

I'm not actually sure how I got to be the lucky one to write about study abroad. I mean, don't get me wrong, "effervescent" hardly begins to describe my explosive, grinning, overwhelmingly exuberant response when asked about how it was to spend the fall this year in London—but let's face it, rarely can you find a less energetic response from anyone who has studied abroad, anytime, anywhere, on any program. The great irony is that many would say traveling away has been their best experience at Southwestern, and that's not to devalue the rest of our four (okay, plus) years here. But when else in your life can you really break away from your highly-established lifestyle and, with maybe two suitcases and a backpack in hand, move six thousand miles away for four months? When else can you catch student fares on the Eurostar (that fabulous chunnel train), plop down in youth hostels for $8 a night, pack for 12 days straight without washing clothes, and travel to eight countries on weekends and holidays, five out of which you don't understand more of the language than bonjour, ciao, drachma, gilder, and chocolates? And when else can you live all day every day in the tightest of urban quarters in one of the world's largest cities with people you probably haven't known well before, and still carve out a niche or a nook for yourself somewhere?

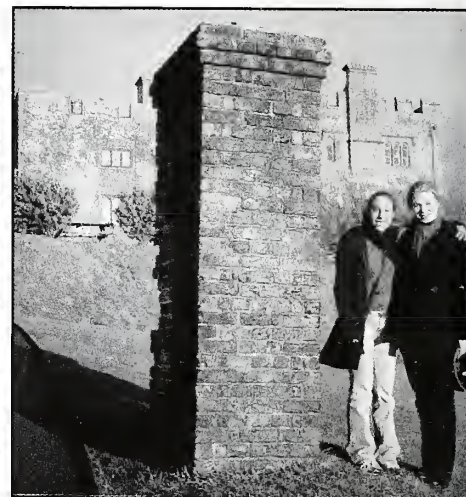

When my beautiful but cramped one-room-for-four-people flat began to overflow (and I promise that is not a complaint about Kensington House, our "renovated nineteenth-century townhouse" in one of the most posh burroughs of London), my place of respite became Hyde Park, a ten-minute walk from our crowded metropolitan Cromwell Road. own. And so, after weekend jaunts across Britain and then across much of Europe, after amazing connections with all flavors of people offering all kinds of perspectives, after beautiful experiences simply living daily with friends sharing in the wonder of worldly- and self-discovery along with you, I would always escape to Hyde Park, to check the unfolding of autumn and of myself in this wholly new land which was rapidly becoming my home, in which I was becoming whole, expanding in every direction across the continent.

Only now can I truly appreciate what it meant to be a "Brit," an (albeit temporary) Londoner reveling for the first time in the immense spaces outside of small-town Texas. And, I admit rather sheepishly, in coming back to Southwestern a wholly different woman, and with the grateful (okay, reverential) revelation that I have "Autumn in London" to thank for this unfolding, I cannot help but wax nostalgic and misty-eyed every time I see a red circle bisected by a blue line (the tube emblem), hear a British (or, for that matter, any European) accent, catch a repetitive but ultimately wonderful techno beat, drink hot tea or cider, journal in a park, or pass any one of my twenty-nine close London friends—and don't let them tell you they're not wistfully reminiscent, too. Because we spent four incredible, unforgettable months opening up together, taking in and savoring this now slightly surreal foreign land, and all I can say in the present moment, besides a passionate, heartfelt thank you (for sharing it with me, for letting me write this), is that experiencing the world in this way meant the world to me. Cheers.

most two centuries ago; conceive of the great dome of St. Paul's Cathedral and the spires of Westminster Abbey, as well as the tolling bells of Big Ben (not the clock tower, but the bell in Parliament's other tower), all looming in the distance, yet held at bay by the serenity of this green haven, permanently preserved by the British government's greenbelt laws. Even on a rainy day (okay, admittedly, that's a British synonym for everyday), people flocked to Hyde Park—and you could literally feel this self-contained realm aging with the progression of the autumn into the end of the year, as the leaves reached their prime and fell...Or maybe, as I felt myself ripening, tenuously trying on the enticing shoes of adulthood and independence (wooden shoes in the Netherlands, sandals in Italy and on the beaches of Greece, sharp black city boots in London, leprechaun-like buckle shoes in Ireland), maybe I became hypersensitive to the evolution and growth of the life in this park, so perfectly mirroring my

DESTINATION:

Destination:Service is an alternative Spring Break program that takes students to different parts of the country and abroad to perform volunteer services. This year students went to sites in Tohatchi, New Mexico; Gila National Park in New Mexico; New York, New York; San Francisco, California; and Honduras. A variety of different opportunities for service were available at each site. Students did everything from working in a soup kitchen to pulling teeth to working on a Navajo reservation. Although, students get far more out of the program than simply volunteer experience. Many forge new friendships, dive in to new cultures, broaden their vision of the world, and have fun, too. Group bonding is a must, and each group can't help but go sight-seeing. Often, Destination:Service trips can be quite surprising, with lots of unexpected and unplanned occurrences which is part of the adventure. There is no better Spring Break than Destination:Service; a combination of adventure and aide.

Southwestern in Motion

Sports

Southwestern may not have a football team, but our sports can compete. Student athletes give it their all in every sport from swimming to baseball to lacrosse. Serious athletes strut their stuff in varsity sports while other students simply enjoy the fun and comraderie that comes along with intermurals. No matter what your sports style, we can accommodate. So lets play!

Volleyball

Friendship and Victories

The Volleyball team started the year off sluggish. The team returned many talented players from the previous season, but a new system led by a new coach, Shannon Carlson, may have attributed to the early losses.

The season quickly turned for the team as they quickly bonded and got to know each others' style of play. In fact, the ladies were able to string together many multi-game winning streaks through conference action.

Going into the cross divisional tournament hosted at Southwestern, they stood strong and fought hard and nearly gained a birth into the N C A A tournament. A tough DePauw squad stifled their hopes of advancing.

By seasons end, their record stood at 21-16, 13-5 in the SCAC and a strong fourth.

Individual accolades include first team SCAC Emmy Collins and third team selections Amber Callaway and Laura Bisset.

MEN'S SOCCER

Dribbling for the Goal

The Buc's Men's soccer team started the year off rocky with five straight losses to difficult teams. The team was young consisting of 25 first year or sophomore students and only two seniors.

Things began to turn around posting several victories as conference began.

The month of October belonged to the bucs. During this time they were victorious in 8 out of 10 decisions.

A loss to Trinity ended the year for the soccer team, and finished conference play with a 4-5 record and 9-9-1 overall.

Senior Midfielder David Russo and Sophomore forward Sal Lopez were both named to the All-SCAC team.

Because of young talent SU's soccer team has a bright future.

WOMEN'S SOCCER

Just plain kickin'

The women's soccer team, coached by Jack Flatau and Allen Fincher began the year with a difficult schedule. This was great preparation for conference action.

After two consecutive road victories against Roanoke and Guilford college, the women earned some respect with the #8 spot in the South region on a rankings.

The year ended on a high note winning three out of four final games. Their record stood at 8-8-1, 5-4 in conference.

Individual honors for the team include: Senior Shawna Hudson's fourth appearance on the All-SCAC first team, Junior Goal keeper Andrea Berry and Sophomore defender Suzy Prucka on the second team.

Organizations

Southwestern has close to 100 clubs and organizations that students, faculty, and staff can join. These organizations range from religious groups to athletic teams. The clubs at Southwestern are broad in interest and in function. Some work for philanthropy, some serve as a means for students to converse about a particular interest, and some have the main goal of entertainment. But whatever the interest, we probably have a club for it. So join!

Sigma Phi Lambda, Sisters for the Lord, is an organization of spiritual growth and encouragement. Over the past four years, Southwestern's chapter of Phi Lamb has grown from 12 founding members in 1998 to this year's active membership of 48 Christian women. Sigma Phi Lambda is a non-Greek, Christian organization whose goal is to promote a strong Christian sisterhood in which women are able to grow in their relationships with Jesus Christ. Phi Lambda has numerous weekly activities that include Bible studies, chapter meetings with personal devotionals, and prayer groups. Also, throughout the year, Phi Lambs participate in numerous service activities and host many social events such as retreats and a spring semi-formal. All of the activities of Phi Lambda center around a Christian call found in our sorority verse, Romans 15:5-6: "May the Lord who gives endurance and encouragement give you a spirit of unity among yourselves as you follow Christ Jesus."

Student Congress

This year under the leadership of President Jimmy Wright, Student Congress was forced to once again deal with important student issues such as the renovation of Ground Zero. Student Congress also had to quench the desires of a disgruntled Student Union that suddenly grew out of student malcontent with current school politics. As Student Congress adjusted to the changes brought by the new University President, the Congress also had to deal with incidents such as increased tuition and the Kappa Alpha dismissal.

BIG

Making a Difference, One Child at a Time

SISTERS

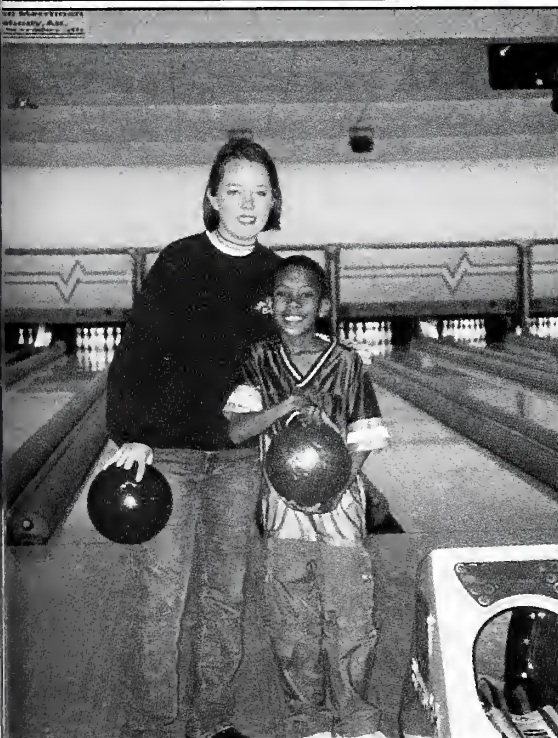

story and photos by Amanda Ackermann and Jennifer Grimsley

Courtney is my little sister, and she is fifteen years old. We were matched up only a few months ago, but we have become close already. I think that she was really glad to be matched up with someone only a few years older than her because we have so many things in common. Basically we just hangout together. We go to the movies, Laser Quest, the arcade, shopping, and sometimes we just lounge around at either of our homes and watch TV or a movie. Sometimes, Big Brother/BigSisters plans really cool events, such as rock climbing, which add a little variety. I am really glad that I became a Big Sister because I feel that I have helped Courtney just by listening to her. Sometimes, that is all it takes.

Dominic Earl is my Little Brother. He is eight years old. We were matched last spring. He lived in Georgetown at the time, but now lives in Austin with his other grandmother. He is very energetic and enthusiastic. He enjoys bowling, going to Mall Ball and playing soccer in the park. Dominic and I have a great time hanging out and doing fun activities together.

~~Student~~ VIEWS

-What's your favorite common's food? Why?

"My favorite food was those great little grilled chicken breasts for sandwiches that they used to have every day. I'd eat them on salads, in sandwiches, and on pasta. Now I usually rely on lunch meat for protein."

~beth goetz, sophomore~

"I like when they serve corn. Other than the fact that it's swimming in butter (like everything else), it doesn't seem to be something you can easily screw up."

~conrad miller, junior~

-What is your favorite thing to do on the mall?

"Cartwheels at night or run through the sprinklers in my pajamas."

~beth goetz, sophomore~

-On a scale of one to ten, how would you rate your roommate on coolness, and why?

"I give a big 10+ to Nick Hirsch." "10--this one talks!"

~eric segers, junior~ ~autumn erwin, senior~

"Matt Siekielski gets a 10. 6 points for his coolness and the extra 4 for each extra inch of hair on his head."

"Swim in the grass -- preferably the backstroke so i can watch the clouds roll by."

~eric segers, junior~

"Ultimate Frisbee."

~matt beck, senior~

"My roommate is a 9. She is really sweet and always helpful. She is incredibly fun to be with."

~beth bonnette, junior~

-What's the best thing about Southwestern? The worst thing?

Do you have any interesting road trip stories to share?

"This past Christmas the swim team went on a road trip to Florida. Imagine a 24-hour bus ride to Ft. Lauderdale with people you see half naked every day."

"Best: the friends. Worst: realizing that you have the wrong major and minor."

~eric segers, junior~

"This past friday, three of my guy friends and I decided to skip classes and go to San Marcos in pursuit of these old witches' graves. We weren't able to enter the cemetery because of a funeral, so we just turned around and headed back to campus. It was crazy."

~mary beth kopsovitch, sophomore~

"I think that the coolest thing is how you can walk around campus and know everybody. But, that's also bad because if you do anything dumb, everyone knows about it within an hour!"

~kirsten johnson, junior~

So here I am, in the land of capitalization.
At first, everything was fine, but I was totally blinded by my excitement.
It has been more than two years now and frustration took over my elation.
All my observations on Americans lead my thoughts to one simple conclusion:
I think my integration in this country will never come to a completion.
Not because of any kind of hesitation,
Nor because of any kind of personal isolation,
But because of my skin pigmentation.

~~Editor's Note~~

To My Beloved Southwestern Community:

With basically one computer, two other editors, a few photographers, some ingenuity and a lot of coffee this yearbook came to be. When I undertook this project I knew that it would be a grueling job, but I had no idea just how grueling it would be. Difficulties arose from all angles, from people missing deadlines to disfunctional printers. Just know that if something could go wrong it probably did. My hopes for this yearbook were exceedingly high going into this project, and I think that is reflected in this book.

Often we don't realize what goes into making such an elaborate and extensive project as a yearbook. Having little support from anyone but my roommate, I soon found out how important reliable and responsible staff truly are. I learned so much from the production of this book. I learned that you can never expect to procrastinate and have everything turn out ok because that printer won't print or that computer will crash. I learned that trying to get a group of faculty members together is like trying to make a peanut butter and jelly sandwich without any peanut butter, jelly, and only one slice of bread.

It's also extremely hard to sell these things. I feel for people who have to sell things. I mean, why don't people just believe that they need to buy a Sou'wester? I guess if you are reading this you got the message.

Hopefully, this yearbook is a recap of the best (and worst) of this year. My goal was to produce a Sou'wester that, twenty years from now, you all could look back and say, "My, how times have changed!". And, you will say that.

The Southwestern Honor Code is a tradition that upholds the academic integrity of the university and the student body. Students write and sign the Honor Code on all examinations, quizzes, homework, and any assignments where the professor deems it necessary. The Honor Code provides the campus community with a high standard of trust amongst the students and faculty.

Southwestern University Faculty

They instill in us the knowledge and values to last a lifetime.

They help us when we do not know what comes next.

They challenge us.

They listen to us.

They share their ideas and eagerly await for us to share ours.

They are the conductors of information.

They push us to the limits.

They encourage us.

They are what make a university.

They are the professors.

VIEWS

-Have you had a professor at Southwestern who has changed your life? How?

"I have had several such professors, most of whom reside in the English Department; Dr. Ellis is someone who I will always remember for inspiring me in lots of different ways. Dr. Meyers is a caring and intelligent burst of energy, and Dr. Kilfoyle has the sexiest voice at Southwestern. I dare you to find another professor who makes you swoon when reading Middle English."

~beth bonnette, junior~

"Even though I never really got to know him too well, I think Dr. Garth Irwin did teach me something. It always seemed that everyone I ever knew who was older than myself was only concerned with making money. What he taught me was simple: there are people out there who actually care about more than just being able to buy this or that, or about appearing to be successful or about money. What a overly complex concept, huh?"

~conrad miller, junior~

"In some way they all have -- each in their own way and with their different personalities and perspectives in subjects and on life in general."

~eric segers, junior~

-Which are more important: the lessons learned in or outside of the classroom?

"Both are places in which we learn important lessons, but it is applying what you have learned inside the classroom in lessons that you learn outside the classroom."

~mary beth kopsovitch, sophomore~

"I believe the lessons learned outside the classroom are more important. They are the 'real life' lessons which are taught through experience and not from any book."

~meaghan anderson, first-year~

"Personally, I feel that the lessons a person had the opportunity to learn outside of the classroom only enrich the lessons that he or she learns inside the classroom, but, once one leaves the classroom, there are some lessons that you will never apply again in life. What are more the lessons that are learned in life are first hand and make a greater impact on the person. Those lessons have the capability of lasting a lifetime."

Faculty Reflections

~Why do you teach at Southwestern?

-- "I teach at Southwestern because of the stimulating interactions with students I have enjoyed since I decided to take a position teaching here. Since I began teaching at Southwestern, I have found that the students in my classes are very much like the students who I met during my interview, and I have been very pleased with how they have decided to use their talents", Dr. Kerry Bruns.

--"Many reasons -- but the one that comes to mind right now is that Southwestern offers flexibility to explore a wide range of academic interests (for students and faculty alike) within a rigorous academic program", Dr. Laura Hobgood-Oster.

~How do you think Southwestern has affected you as a person?

--"It has made me more deeply 'Me' -- teaching here has put me in touch with my own authenticity, integrity, and sense of purpose. Teaching here continuously pushes me as a teacher, and, thus, as a person. I have grown so much in the last four years", Dr. Christine Kiesinger.

--"My favorite thing to do outside of class is to sit back and play bass while being amazed by the mandolin licks of Mike McCarthy, or the guitar licks of Lee Edwards, Jim Hunt and John Bigley. Of course, it hasn't done my hearing any good...", Dr. Dan Hilliard.

--"Waiting for Guffman", Dr. Rick Roemer.

~How would you describe your teaching style?

-- "only superficially superficial", Dr. David Gaines.

--"I enjoy teaching at Southwestern most of all when students engage authentically with challenging texts and concepts--and when they do it in a second language, eg, French! Today, March 2, the students in my French Cultures & Civ class were exemplary in all regards. This is the kind of teaching/learning environment in which a genuine dialogic is possible--possible but never easy or automatic. When students and faculty work together to create such an atmosphere, such a collaborative and non-adversarial relationship, the classroom is the best of all possible worlds", Dr. Suzanne Chamier.

Brown Symposium XXIII, Shakespeares!, brought many different view points on the works of William Shakespeare to Southwestern campus. This year's speakers focused on everything from race and gender issues to religious aspects in Shakespearean works. One of the main features this year was a three-person rendition of Hamlet performed by Matthew Lane Detmer, Charles McIver, and Carine Montbertrand. The Brown Symposium was coordinated by Dr. Walt Herbert.

Dr. Susan M. Gorman is a professor of psychology at the University of North Carolina at Charlotte. She has a Ph.D. in psychology from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. Her research interests include the development of the self and the role of the social environment in the development of the self.

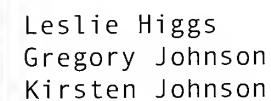

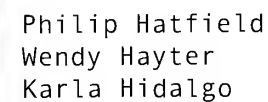

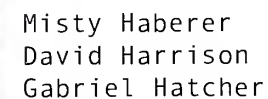

A black and white photograph showing a person riding a bicycle on a paved path. The path is flanked by rows of trees, creating a canopy effect. The person is wearing a backpack and is positioned in the center of the frame, moving away from the viewer. The lighting suggests a bright day, with strong shadows cast by the trees.

Graduation Class of 2001

photos by Gaby Frey

Good Luck Seniors!

Here the gym in the Robertson Center is packed at Graduation as the Seniors file in to take their places and prepare for the ceremony.

Sophomore Celeste Tavera and Graduating Senior Ryan Parks smile big after graduation. Graduation is a time of great happiness but also of sadness at leaving behind friends at Southwestern.

Special Thanks

My heartfelt thanks goes out to all of those who contributed to this yearbook in a variety of ways. Not only could I not have done it without you, but I wouldn't even have known where to begin! First and foremost, I thank my close friend, roommate, and assistant editor Victoria Edwards for being so willing to help and learn, doing whatever she could even when the cursed computers wouldn't work, and for being the best moral support there is. Secondly, I would like to thank our Taylor Publishing Company Representative Jim Anderson. Without his expertise and knowledge many of the images that appear in this book would not be here. Also, I would like to thank our Advisor Dr. Mike Leese for his efforts to console and support in this endless task. And, moreover, I have to thank his secretary Linda McFall. She went through continuous hassle in dealing with student pictures, and trying to help make things run smoothly. That woman is amazing. And a big thanks to Beth Carroll for her advice as a previous editor in a thankless job.

Next, I would like to thank the remainder of my meager staff. All of their contributions helped a great deal. To Chris Ramser for his steadfast devotion and completion of pages. To Sarah Meyer for her marvelous photography and maintenance of the darkroom. To Gaby Frey whose photo albums saved us so much time and energy.

Furthermore, I would like to acknowledge the contributions of my numerous freelance photographers, for what is a yearbook if not for the pictures. I appreciate the help of Amanda Ackermann, Rudolpho Gutierrez, Hillary Hunter, Matt Irvine, Jason Jones, Taylor Jones, Andrew Loehman, and Meg Sloan. And I greatly appreciate the help of Carrie Johnson in University Relations in acquiring much needed photos. Also thanks to all others who contributed pictures.

Additionally, I would especially like to recognize Misty McLaughlin and Mary Jane Valleti for their story contributions.

And last, but by no means least, I would like to recognize my personal hero and friend, photographer Allen Cote. Without Allen, the bulk of the photography and printing would have been left for me to mess up. Not only did he come to help me for a week in the summer, but he didn't even get paid to do it! He went above and beyond the call of duty so many times and saved me when I really needed it. So much of this book was made possible because of him. My thanks are innumerable.

Again, thanks to everyone who contributed in any way to this book. Your help was invaluable.
